Allcock's Porous Plaster,

Every good thing has its host of imitations; every genuine article its counterfeits. The imitators always choose the most valuable and popular article to counterfeit, so that when they claim their sham to be equal, or as good, or the same as "So-and-So's," the public may depend upon it that "So-and-So's" article is the best of the kind.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER is the standard of excellence the world over, and imitators, in their cry that theirs is "as good as Allcock's," are only emphasizing this fact and admitting "ALLCOCK's" to be the acme of perfection, which it is their highest ambition to imitate. The difference between the genuine and these imitations, which copy only general appearance, is as wide as that between gold and copper.

The despised left hand makes good its claims in many cases to be the defter of the two. The fingers that touch and adjust with such nicety the strings of the violin are surely as cunning as those that move the bow. The hand that guides the reins and steers with exactness the horse through the crowded streets is quite as cunning as, one might say much more than, the hand that wields the whip. But great is fashion, unanswerable in theory, says Chambers's Journal.

It is curious to note the vagaries of humanity in cases where no hard and fast line has been already drawn. Although most right-handed persons put on their coats left arm first, a considerable percentage thrust in their right first. Soldiers fire from the right shoulder, but sportsmen are found who prefer the left.

In working with the spade, the proportion of right-handed men grasp the spade with the left and push with the left foot and right hand, though, when using an axe, the same individuals would srasp further down with the right. The Persians mount their horses from the right side, which is the different side from that mounted by Europeans.

The buttons on coats, &c., are placed on the right side, and the shed of the hair in boys to the left, evidently to suit manipulation by the right hand. The great philosopher, Newton, records that at first he confined his astronomical observations to his right eye, but afterwards he managed to train his left.

But there are persons who could not do this, owing to the unequal strength of their eyes. Strange to say, the Chinese assign the place of honor to the left.

At Kunyenye, in Africa, Cameron relates being introduced to the heir-presumptive to the throne, the nalls of whose left hand had been allowed to grow to an enormous length as a sign of high rank, proving that he was never required to perform manual labor, and also providing him with the means of tearing the meat which formed his usual diet.

HERSELF.

THROUGH HER BRAIN.

Because she could not sleep, Mrs. Clara Under-hill, of No. 907 Morris avenue, put a builet through her brain. Her husband, Benjamin R. Underhill, is a traveiling salesman for the Smead Warming and Veutilating Company, 331 Smead Warming and Vestilating Company, 331
Madison avenue. They were married only four years ago. Insomnia, or siceplessness, has troubled Mrs. Underhill for eighteen months past, and in spite of medical advice, change of seene, and rest, she could obtain no relief. On recent and rest, she could obtain no relief. On Tuesday she said to her mother-in-law: "There's no use in trying to keep up any longer. I am getting thin and like a ghost of my former self. I may as well be dead, and I sometimes think it would be better if I put an end to my missrable life." The rest recent she was found dead in her room, having shot herself through the temple with her husband's revolver. Dr. W. A. Goodall, who was called in, said that Mrs. Underhill had been dead four or five hours. It is thought that, frantic with sleeplesaness, she turned on the gas, and finding that too slow a death, shot herself. The sad aceptable to all the States, so that the states may protect themselves and each other.

Trusts and combines have been formed by the wealthler operators in rubber, cordage, sugar, coal and a host of other things necessary to all classes of people. The first business of these trusts is to "squeeze" the smaller dealer, so that he is forced out of the trade, usually into ankruptcy and ruin.

The next thing is to "put the screws" on the people by advancing the price of its commodity, and thus, for the past year or more, the people have been obliged to pay from $1 to $2 more per ton for coal than the cost of production warranted, for the trust had bought out or killed all competition.

The people of Minnesota were particularly hard hit by the robber barons of the coal combine, and last Winter the Minneapolis Grand Jury made this octopus the subject of a presentation.

The Legislature took up the matter and passed a bill directing Gov. Nelson to call a convention June 5 at Chicago, to be known as "The Interstate Anti-Trust Conference."

The Governor of each State and Territory was to be asked to send to representative men of his State as delegates to the conference.

Twenty-six Governors have replied favorably to Gov. Nelson's invitation, only two negative replies having been received, the Governors of Indiana and a New York declining, because of some obstacle in the laws of their respective Commonwealths.
